Secretary of Navy Writes to Congressman Reed Regarding the Same.

The following letter from Secretary of the Navy Daniels to Congressman Reed on the matter of building a fuel ship at this yard will be read with much interest:

The Secretary of the Navy,
Washington.

March 22, 1913.

"My Dear Mr. Reed: * * * In regard to Mr. Hurford's letter, requesting that the fuel ship be constructed at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, I have to inform you that instructions have been issued to proceed with the construction of the fuel ship Maumee at the Mare Island Navy Yard, in accordance with their estimate of $1,063,320.00, no other expense being required at that yard for providing additional tools or facilities for the building of the vessel. The estimates submitted by the Portsmouth Navy Yard for building the vessel was $1,122,288.00, there also being required at that yard an additional expense of $113,954.00 for providing a building ship, necessary cranes for handling material, and other facilities required in case the vessel were constructed there. I am returning the two letters to you.

"Faithfully yours,
"(Signed) JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

THE SULTAN SHEDS TEARS

Turkish Ruler Mourns Over the Many Disasters That Have Befallen
the Ottoman Armies

London, March 28.—Railway and telegraph communications with Adrianople is being restored rapidly and some idea of the condition of the city is beginning to reach the outside world.

According to reports from Sofia, the condition of the population of Adrianople is not so disastrous as has been depicted. While the Turks, set free to the grain stores, they overlooked the flour depot, the contents of which are being distributed among the poor. These reports declare that only a few buildings were damaged by the bombardment. Nothing is said concerning the damage done by the fires which the Turks themselves started before the city fell.

In the last dispatch the Turkish commander of the fortress Shereff Pasha sent to Constantinople, he said he was destroying the great national religious buildings, to prevent them from being profaned by impure feet.

Many of the Turks before the enemy arrived took time to break their rifles, render useless a number of siege guns destroy all the ammunition depots and even to kill their horses in order to prevent them falling into the hands of the invaders. The wireless stations and searchlights were blown up by order of Shereff Pasha who on the whole seems to have made a pretty complete job of his work of destruction.

The railway is being utilized to take supplies into the city. Jealousy between the Bulgarians and Serbians is apparent in official circles. General Ivanoff, the Bulgarian commander, claims all the credit for the capture of Adrianople. He describes the Serbian operations as purely demonstrative. On the other hand the Serbian official account of the fall of the city gives credit to the Serbian artillery, cavalry and infantry which he says, made possible the capture of the eastern fortresses by the Bulgarians.

All accounts reaching here agree that the Turks have suffered a severe loss at Tebriz. Some of the correspondents placed the Turkish losses as high as 2500 killed and 7500 wounded. These figures probably are exaggerated as only a few wounded men have reached Constantinople.

The Sultan wept bitterly when informed of the general situation, and it is reported that the Turkish embassies abroad have been ordered to appeal to the powers to hasten mediation.

The objection of the allies to that frontier as proposed by the powers and the veto by the powers of the allies' claims to indemnity must, however, cause a delay in mediation.

LEGISLATURE SPLIT ON IMPEACHMENT

House Includes Three Sheriffs and Senate Demands Removal of Five County Officials.

Augusta, Me., March 28.—An amendment to include Sheriffs Wilbert W. Emerson of Penobscot County and John W. Ballou of Sagadahoc in the impeachment proceedings instituted by Governor William T. Haines yesterday against Sheriff Lewis W. Monks of Cumberland County for alleged failure to enforce the prohibitory liquor law was offered in the house by Representative Nefbert on this day. Democratic minority leader today, when the resolves for an investigation of the charges was received from the senate. The resolve as Mr. Monks is a Democrat while the other two sheriffs are Republicans.

An order introduced by Representative Skyles of Westbrook, a Democrat, calling upon Governor Haines to remove from the legislature with the names of the officials to whom he referred in his message yesterday as being derelict in duty was passed.

After refusing to concur with the house on the inclusion of Sheriff Emerson and Ballou in the impeachment order, the senate adopted resolutions asking for the removal of William H. Hares of Lewiston, county attorney of Androscoggin; Henry M. Love of Turner, sheriff of Androscoggin; Wilbert W. Emerson of Humpston, Sheriff of Penobscot county; John W. Ballou of Bath, sheriff of Sagadahoc county and Adolphe J. Tolman of Rockland, sheriff of Knox county.

These resolutions were tabled in the house until Tuesday morning.

REPORTS OUT.

Rockingham County Commissioners Issue Their Annual Statement.

The Rockingham county reports appeared yesterday, and many interesting gleanings are obtained from them. The recapitulation shows the receipts to be: Cash on hand Jan. 1, 1912, $44,087.92; county taxes, $83,748.60; state board license commissioners, $772.15; income of county farm, $4085.51; miscellaneous, $2598.81, and notes, $25,000, making a total of $176,188.39.

The disbursements are: Commissioners' orders, $86,265.65; superior court orders, $5055.60; superior court jury pay rolls, $4279.16; interest and coupons, $5293.93; salaries, $4174; commissioners' expenses, $454.42; medical referee, $520; notes paid, $25,000; bonds paid, $5000; making a total of $137,127.89, leaving as cash on hand at the close of the year, Dec. 31, 1912, $39,060.50.

CHANGES HIS FAITH.

Samuel W. Emery, Jr., Returns to the Democratic Fold.

Samuel W. Emery, Jr., for several years past identified with the Republican party, has returned to his first love, the democratic party, it is alleged. Mr. Emery's return to the democratic party was made this week, when it is stated that he visited Concord and informed Senator Hollis that while he had been absent from the fold for a short time he was desirous of returning once more and should from this out be found in the democratic ranks.

Greenland Man May Be Collector of Internal Revenue.

Among the active hustling candidates for the position of Collector of Internal Revenue in this city is Joseph Schurman. "Joe" was a staunch supporter of Senator Hollis, and his friends say that he is a strong candidate. Other men mentioned for the place in this city are Dr. S. T. Ladd, and Dr. Charles A. Morse of Newmarket. There are no less than a hundred candidates up the state.

HELLO GIRLS MAY STRIKE

Telephone Operators Set Thursday
As Limit and Said to Favor
Strike if Necessary

Boston, March 28.—Boston Telephone Operators' Union at its meeting yesterday, instructed its arbitration board and wage scale committee to demand a conference with President J. L. Spaulding of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., on or before next Thursday to discuss the requests made by the girls' union.

Tonight a joint meeting of the executive boards of all seven Boston Electrical Workers' Unions, will be held by order of Frank L. Kelley, international executive board member to discuss the situation and make any plans necessary.

Tomorrow the arbitration board of the girls' union will meet to arrange details for its further action for a hearing.

First International vice president Loughlin has been ordered to take charge of the local situation and will be in Boston tomorrow.

Information president Frank J. McNulty, it was stated, was also on his way to this city to act with the girls. His exact whereabouts last night were not known, as he was delayed in the flood district. It was Peter P. Linnihan the former international organizer who helped the girls in the formation of the union, came on from New York to give what aid and advice he could.

The union yesterday admitted 194 new members, some private exchange members and others, students, just employed by the company.

The sentiment for a strike was unanimous.

Frank L. Kelley, the international board member now in charge of the girls' situation, strongly urged the girls at each of the meetings to have the union make another, and if necessary final effort, to see President Spaulding of the company, and not accept any raincoat, indirect posting of notices as an answer to its requests.

Then, he added if the company's officials refused to see the committee there would be nothing else for the union to do but to take trade action. He said he was inclined to believe that the company's officials would receive the union's committee next week.

In the interview he said, the international officers now enroute would have arrived meetings of all the local executive boards could be held for all plans for joint and supporting action if necessary and the public would be convinced that the girls' union was making every effort to amicably adjust its grievances, maintain the

CLAIMED THAT MARTIN MADE FOUR WILLS

Col. John H. Bartlett Will Defend Will of Which He Is Executor.

A dispatch from New York says that Captain John G. Martin, the eccentric philanthropist, who died in a sanitarium on Sept. 3, left four wills for the distribution of his $800,000 estate, is declared by Adolph Rafter of 1 Broadway in an affidavit filed with the surrogate today. Two of the wills have been filed with the court and the contest as to which shall be admitted in April.

Rafter who was Capt. Martin's confidential auditor, says that after the funeral in Lancaster, Penn. Sept. 6, three papers purporting to be the will of the captain was reported to him by members of the family. One was alleged to be dated March 29, 1905, another March 19, 1908, and the last July 31, 1912. He was further told says Mr. Rafter, that there was possibly a fourth will, executed in Philadelphia earlier than any of the others.

Col. John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth, N. H., who opined the 1912 will and is named executor in it has indicated he will make a vigorous fight to establish the standing of that paper in the courts.

After in his affidavit, says: "During Mr. Martin's visit to Kittery Point, Me., in July and August 1912, he became acquainted with John H. Bartlett. As the result of this very short acquaintance with a stranger, Bartlett received from Martin during August, 1912, upward of $200,000. The checks state on their face that they were for investment account of John G. Martin. Mr. Martin was taken to the Silverdale Sanitarium by Mr. Bartlett and saw no one except Mr. Bartlett and his physicians until his death."

Surrogate Fowler reserved decision.

ELKS WIN CUP FROM THE WARWICK CLUB

Win Most of Events in Interclub Tournament.

In the final meet between the Elks and the Warwick club for the silver cup offered last year, the Elks won three out of the four events and with their previous games take possession of the cup for one year.

The meet was held at the Warwick club on Friday evening and there was a large gathering of the members of both organizations.

There were four events, cribbage, pitch, pool and billiards and the Elks won all but the cribbage. The summary:

George Gibson, Pirates' Veteran, Seems to Have Regained Form

Hot Springs, Ark., March 28.—Who says they do not come back? Well they do! Look at George Gibson the Pittsburgh Pirates' veteran catcher. Last season it was thought that he had seen his best playing days; that in a year or two more he would be in the minors. In the spring practice games George handled the pitcher as well, if not better than he did in his best days. He now plays with lots of snap and goes with deadly aim. Manager Clarke is highly pleased with the showing of the veteran. Two years ago Gibson was considered the best catcher in the country.

NEW CASTLE

Miss Gentle Spring, the well known adventuress and globe trotter, is again in our midst. At present there is no outbreak of spontaneous enthusiasm, for instead of tangible evidence of "effervescent mildness" we are being greeted by a cold, sour visaged frosty looking person recommending her seasoned relative, Old Winter. Despite this state of affairs there is a ray of hope, the same hope which is popularly believed to spring eternal in the human breast, that we shall soon hear the songs of the birds and to feeling zephyrs wafting across our brows.

Mrs. Addie Frost is the guest of Mr. Everett Yeaton and family in Nye. Mr. Forrest Becker has returned from a sojourn in Boston.

Mrs. Gladys Barker and charming little daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Harding.

JUNIORS WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The basketball game between the Senior and Junior teams of the high school basketball league played at the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday afternoon was the best exhibition of basketball seen in the gymnasium this season. The game was full of excitement from start to finish. The good plays, which were numerous were appreciatively applauded by the largest number of spectators which have been in attendance this year. At times the excitement was so keen on the part of some of the players that it was necessary to give them time to come back to terra firma. The cheering of the rooters of both teams was of a high order and judging from the volume, Portsmouth's future suffragettes will be qualified to give valuable assistance on the platform in both quantity and quality. The players received the support from their loyal rooters who worked nearly as hard in the gallery for the game as the players did upon the floor. In the first period the Seniors run up a score of thirteen points while their opponents the Juniors were securing eight; but not so in the second period the Juniors held the Seniors to four points while they scored eight, thus making the score seventeen to sixteen in favor of the Seniors. Not being satisfied with their work thus far the Juniors put the screws in still farther and held the Seniors to one point in the last period while they were making seven. This gave the same to the Juniors by a score of twenty-three to eighteen. Neither team showed any superiority over the other and it was by the hardest kind of work that either team was able to score a basket. By winning this game the Juniors close the season with a clean slate having won all their games. The Seniors finish second having lost but two games and have two to the Juniors. The Freshmen finish third with the Sophomores clinging up the rear. A great deal of credit should be given the Junior and Senior teams for their consistent practice throughout the season which in a large measure is responsible for the success which they have attained. The League this year has been a decided success from the standpoint of interest and support given also from the financial standpoint showing a very respectable improvement over the record of last year. This in itself should reassure the supporters of its success and continuance another year.

RITCHIE STOPPED WALCOTT IN SIXTH

In by far the best boxing match of the season at Freeman's hall on Friday evening, Joe Ritchie of Boston disposed of Belmont Walcott in six rounds of what was to have been a ten round bout.

Ritchie went after Walcott from the start and they mixed it up fast and freely with Ritchie having the better of the going. In the fifth the bell saved Walcott and it required but a few seconds in the sixth to finish him.

The preliminaries were fast. Soldier Rogers from the 16th Co. at Fort Constitution got the decision over Jim McKoon who claims the middle weight championship of the army in six rounds.

Fred Rockendahl, the local blacksmith made short work of Jimmy Campbell who was stopped in two rounds.

NEW ENGLAND HAS A FLOOD DISTRICT

Connecticut Valley Under Water and Much Property Loss--No Lives Lost.

South Vernon, Vt., Mar. 28.—The crest of the Connecticut river flood passed the line into Massachusetts at noon today.

Reports from up the river stated that the water was falling at Brattleboro and Bellows Falls.

No damage has been done in this vicinity.

LOWER VALLEY IS MENACED

Bellows Falls, Vt., March 28.—The upper reaches of the Connecticut river valley emerged today from the flood which has been sweeping down the watersheds since last week, but the lower valley from here to the river's mouth, was still menaced with high water.

The crest of the flood appeared to be between here and Brattleboro at dawn. At both points the river was stationary, at about 19 feet.

The damage in the valley was comparatively light, and so far as known there was no loss of life. A few bridges were carried away, washouts took place on railroads and highways and in some places inhabitants of low lands were driven from their homes.

The railroad service not only in the Connecticut valley north of Greenfield, Mass., but on the west side of the Green Mountains, was almost at a standstill.

At Woodsville, N. H., on trains were running on either the Passumpsic or the White River Divisions of the Boston & Maine railroad. The service south to Concord was working fairly well.

Trains were running on delayed schedules north of St. Johnsbury, but there has been no train between that point and Wells River since last week.

Boom of Logs Against a Bridge

The railroad bridge over the Connecticut river at White River Junction was withstanding a terrific pressure from a broken boom of logs. Any break there was expected to threaten bridges further down the river. Trains on the Central Vermont to Montpelier were running on long delayed schedules. With the Boston &

Maine bridge held down by freight trains, service on that line was at a standstill.

High water stopped all trains into this place last night, and there will be no communication with the outer world until the bridges are pronounced safe.

Numerous washouts are reported on the Rutland, and the Boston and Maine tracks on the Passumpsic and Cheshire Divisions were well under water today. Train service was also suspended into Brattleboro, where many of the mills were shut down because of lack of power.

The train service along the Connecticut river in Massachusetts was in better shape today than in any other part of the valley, although all the low lands below Greenfield were flooded, and market gardens near Springfield badly damaged.

On the west side of the Green Mountains the floods were not so destructive, although train service into Rutland from Bennington, which ceased yesterday morning and that from Burlington, which stopped at sunset, had not been resumed at 10 a. m. today.

HAD ROUNDED CAPE HORN

Great Wooden Ship Comes To Philadelphia (Philadelphia Public Ledger)

The three masted full rigged ship Aryan, the last wooden ship of her type to be constructed in this country, and one of the few at present under the American flag, has arrived here from Port Blakey, Washington, after a thrilling voyage of 160 days in which she rounded Cape Horn. The vessel's arrival, recalled the glorious days of the clipper ship when the fearless American skipper and his crews made the stars and stripes supreme on the seven seas.

More than ordinary interest was attached to the vessel's arrival, because of these features and because she carried a cargo of 1,000,000 feet of Oregon pine the first to be received here in 15 years. The timber, some of it 50 feet in length and nearly two feet square was packed solidly aboard this ship. Nearly 180,000 feet of it was stacked on the deck.

Captain James McLachen, the Captain, said the voyage was unevent-

PORTSMOUTH AND EXETER COUNCILS HOLD JOINT VISITATION

A joint visitation of Davenport Council No. 5 Royal and Select Masters of this city and Exeter Council No. 41 of Exeter was held at Masonic hall on Friday evening and it was a big event in Masonic circles. The Exeter Council came down by special cars at seven o'clock, and with the local Masons crowded the hall.

Davenport Council was inspected by Right Illustrious Leonard Davis Hunt of Exeter, Principal Conductor of Work of Grand Council and the Olivet inspection was made by Right Illustrious George Hamilton Kelley of Lebanon, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Council.

The work of the evening was—Degree of Select Master by the officers of the Olivet Council and the Degree of Super-Illustrious Master by officers of Davenport Council. There was special music.

Following the work a fine banquet was served in the upper hall for which Hodgdon catered, serving the following menu:

Escalloped Oysters

ful, but the log book told a different story. Two winters and three summers were met on the voyage, with four hurricanes thrown in for good measure. Lightning played its pranks on one occasion. A minor fire was seen. St. Elmo's fire illuminated the ship and at times she sailed through the lurid glare of seas lit with phosphorescence. A young shark was captured and his tail was attached to the bowsprit for good luck.

The vessel began her long trip on the morning of October 20. About 12 hours later she struck a gale, which tore off the outer masts, stays. On the next day the foremast was carried away.

Nature sent the crew a Christmas present when they were 66 days out. It came in the form of a mirage of a beautiful tropical island. Everything on it was plainly visible. Despite the coolness of the weather at the time some of the seamen say that they even felt the warm wind that must have been blowing over the spot.

The strangest part of the voyage was experienced on New Year's Day. The vessel was roaring along on the edge of a hurricane. The wind from the northwest was blowing 75 miles an hour. Rain came down in sheets and the crash of thunder sounded like a battery of heavy artillery in action. Lightning flashed from the skies at frequent intervals. One bolt struck the mainmast and leaped in bounds from it to the lowermast and then to the crossjack yard which in snapped off.

Second mate William Swater was nearly stood Augustus Rose, and Cabin boy Fred Hart was passing with a tray of food. The pipe which Swater was smoking was broken off at the stem by the lightning. Rose's wooden leg was shattered and the tray of food was tossed into the sea. A pine log about 85 feet in length and about 18 inches square was split in half as though by a saw.

The last hurricane of the voyage on January 30, tore away every sail. The vessel sprung a leak just above the water line.

The Aryan was constructed twenty years ago at Phillipsburg, Me. She will probably be the last ship from this port to make the voyage around the horn, as the opening of the Panama canal will sound the deathknell of such trips.

Col. and Mrs. H. Clinton Taylor left on Friday on a weeks trip to New York and Washington.

The New Hampshire Scandal.

It will be a tremendous pity if the charges of bribery and attempts at bribery during the recent election of the senator from New Hampshire are permitted to receive anything less than a thorough investigation. There is truth in the position that bribery and improper methods are charged frequently when there is no shadow of warrant for such assertions, but the cure for patent irresponsibility is investigation, as the case which was recently settled by the Massachusetts senate has shown. A charge of bribery is a spectre which will continue to walk until it has been laid. An investigation which does not go to the bottom of such a charge serves simply to advertise it, and does nothing but harm. From the other point of view, as well, there is reason for a thorough investigation. Legislative votes have sometimes been bought or bid for. If this has really been the case in New Hampshire, the culprits should be shown to the world and properly punished.—Boston Advertiser.

Political Log-Rolling in Portsmouth.

Prominent citizens have backed up the request of the Board of Public Works for authority to issue bonds in case of need for $150,000. The delegation from this city in the general court recommended that the bill ought to pass after once refusing to report favorably. The bill was reported to the legislature "ought to pass," and upon motion of one of the Portsmouth members it has been recommitted to the delegation. It is unfortunate for Portsmouth that she has to be made a political football in all matters. Every business man and citizen, regardless of party, believe that the bond issue may become necessary any moment and it can do no harm to grant the authority. The delegation should report the bill and pass it.

Great Tornadoes.

The western and southern storms which culminated in the vicinity of Omaha appear to have been composed principally and essentially of great winds. If it were possible to hold out hopes that such disasters would not occur again, or could be prevented by anything that man could do, the interior of this country would be a better place of residence than it has been. But they are as unpreventable as earthquakes, and with the increase of settled areas in the West they must continue to do increasing harm. The parts of the country not plunged into distress by what has occurred will sympathize with the stricken districts and will be quick to afford all the relief which they require.—Providence Journal.

Political Traducers.

Many reputable persons have been deterred from being candidates for political offices, owing to the fear that the professional mud slinger would get in his deadly work. It is interesting to note that Col. John H. Bartlett of this city, in the course of his remarks at Concord on Friday, made the following statement: "The next time I run for office, I shall run on this platform; that I propose to put out of business all scandalmongers who destroy the reputation of honest folks by breathing these most infamous accusations ever put forth to harm a civilized gentleman." At the conclusion of his remarks Colonel Bartlett was warmly congratulated by those present for his frank utterances.

The Vice-Presidency.

It is only in contrast with the president that the vice-president is an official of small importance, the jokesmiths notwithstanding. He is not really a man stowed away on a shelf, to remain there until the end of his term or until the death of the president calls him into life and activity. Certainly the people of the United States for the first half century or more of the nation's existence did not regard the vice-presidency lightly. For almost a quarter of a century, in fact, the man chosen for the second highest office in the gift of the people was the man who received the second highest vote for the first office.—Kansas City Journal.

What, ho! The secretary of the navy expects to visit the Charlestown yard early in the summer and tell some of his best stories to the marines.—Boston Herald.

Hope he will say only kind things to the marines about Boston. The marines at Portsmouth are already thinking up some good stories to tell him about Charlestown.

Up to the present writing there has been no indication that the democratic leaders of this city would give a barbecue in honor of the new acquisition to their party.

Those Elks demonstrated to the members of the Warwick club that they know the game as well as being the best people on earth.

Great Floods Work Havoc In Ohio and Indiana Following the Devastation by Cyclone In Omaha.

Cyclone, flood and fire has been the order of calamity just meted out to various sections of the country. Great sections of Ohio and Indiana are in a state of awful devastation from the fury of the floods which swept them. Several thousand lives were snuffed out, and about a half million persons were rendered homeless, according to reports. Omaha, Neb., is the scene of the worst destruction wrought by the cyclone. Much of the city was destroyed, and the loss of life and property was enormous. At top is shown the ruins of E. A. Parmelee's home at Twentieth and Parby streets, Omaha. Underneath that is a view of the flood at Columbus, O.

LUCIEN SAVED NAPOLEON

But for His Wit France Would Have Outlawed the Future Emperor

No speculations in history are more fascinating than those which concern themselves with the effect upon great events of fortune or accident. This is particularly so when the incidents are of picturesque importance in the life of a great historical personage. P. E. Smith, M. P., points out in an interesting article that the most conspicuous instance in history is that in which it seemed as if a trivial accident had determined at once the career of Napoleon and the fortunes of Europe.

The coup d'état cannot be reconstructed without realizing the position of Napoleon when it occurred, for, as the writer shows, it is impossible otherwise to do justice to the views of those who believe that even if it had failed, his reputation and genius would nevertheless have secured at once a position of personal government.

After tracing Napoleon's military career, and the difficulties which had a he encountered to execute the coup d'état, Mr. Smith graphically describes the position at the moment when it was determined to put every thing to the hazard.

Plans To Capture the Sitting

On November 6 at a banquet given by the chambers to M. de Talleyrand, the arrangements were completed. The attempt was to be made on November 18 and 19. On November 18 a memorable session of the Council of Ancients began. It was then decided under a preconcerted plan and within the powers of the constitution that the sitting should be transferred to St. Cloud. On the motion of Regnier it was resolved that both councils should meet at the palace on Nov. 19 and that the decree should be carried out by General Bonaparte, who for that purpose was given the command of the guards, the guard of the legislative body and the garrison of Paris. A further resolution provided that General Bonaparte should appear before the Council of the Ancients and take the oath.

While these momentous resolutions were in process of adoption Napoleon was awaiting news in his home. In the midst of the most trusted of his military supporters. The two illustrious directors, Mouton and Clotier, at once perceived the significance of Regnier's motion.

Gothier was placed under arrest and Mouton escaped. In the meantime Napoleon informed a little prematurely of the compliance of the ancients to the transfer. The issue of the day in the Tuilleries, however, was that in his route he passed the Place de la Concorde, where the Statue of Liberty was under repair. It will be remembered that Napoleon was to take the oath to the constitution.

He evaded this obligation plunging instead into vague rhetoric which was much applauded by the soldiers in the gallery, but produced very little effect upon the ancients and indeed even before the council largely favored to himself which he first addressed he appeared to little advantage.

Napoleon Was Near Death

It seemed as if his personality so overpowering and familiar surroundings had faded him under circumstances of which he had so little experience. He left the council unconvinced and engaged in doubtful with feelings and uneasy consultation. A greater ordeal awaited him and one to which he was appearing even more unequal. To become necessary to face the council of the Five Hundred.

The influence of Lucien Bonaparte had induced this council to acquiesce without undue suspicion in the transference of its session to St. Cloud, but its members were wholly unprepared to acquiesce in any violent invasion from the constitution. Napoleon entered the hall and as he entered the uniforms of his military to those within. Immediately they rang out the cry which in the last few years had sounded the death knell of so many daring adventures: "Outlaw him! Down with the dictator!"

These cries were taken up all over the chamber and seemed for a moment to spell the message of doom. Napoleon dined and for a moment everything was lost. He did not even attempt to escape physical violence but was roughly jostled by indignant members. The soldiers formed around him and escorted him from the hall, pale, disheveled, incoherently babbling, no longer master of himself.

This was the supreme crisis of his life, and he was saved not by himself, but by Lucien. Both within the chamber, and even without among the soldiers, the position was hazardous, uncertain and critical. With an uproar an immediate demand that a vote of outlawry should be passed by the council. It is impossible to say with dogmatic certainty what would have been the consequences of such a vote, but that it would have involved Napoleon in the gravest and the most immediate peril is apparent.

Lucien To His Aid

Lucien Bonaparte, with swift and brilliant instinct realized that the only hope of saving the situation was to suspend the sitting. This he did, ringing aside his official robes and leaving the chamber under the protection of soldiers, who entered in order to evacuate him. The issue hung in the balance. The Revolution, and all it stood for was at the hazard.

It became evident that it would only be terminated favorably to the conspirators by one of those skillful and dramatic appeals of which great men are capable in times of very great crisis. The Napoleon era is stated in the face, but it was not Napoleon who rose to the height of resource which it demanded. The essential falsity of the antithesis so frequently attempted between me and words and men of deeds—for there are many occasions in which words are deeds—received a signal illustration.

Napoleon the man of deeds, was still not his own man; Lucien the man of words was equal to the needs of a moment so poignant. Mounting a horse he addressed the excited soldiers. Even his adroit and impassioned inducing the soldiers to march upon the assembly. They contented themselves with giving cheers for Bonaparte but hesitated before resorting to violence against the deputies.

A Dramatic Moment

Here again it was Lucien who with a sure melodramatic instinct, captured the wavering. He drew his dagger pointed it at Napoleon's heart with an oath that he would kill his brother if he ever failed in fidelity to France. The point was carried. The troops under Murat burst into the hall. The deputies met their entry with defiant cheers for the republic. But the discord melted into silence before the menacing drums of the soldiers and the councillors were driven into headlong flight through the doors and the windows.

$3.50 Recipe Free For Weak Men

Send Name and Address Today.
You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakness, memory and long back, brought on by excesses, untimely habits or the follies of youth, that has cured so many weak and nervous men in their own homes, without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and vitality, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me or it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest and most effective remedy for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor, failure over and over.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop struggling himself with harmful patent medicines, see what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, and find that "Touching remedy" ever devised, and in pure himself at home quietly and safely. Just drop me a line like this: "Dr. A. J. Robinson, 424 Laek Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Such were the methods adopted in dealing with the body which was most hostile to the plans of the conspirators.

It is not necessary to trace subsequent events in any detail. The coup d'état was complete, and after a brief interval it became clear that nothing stood between Napoleon and autocratic power. The true interest of the whole attempt is to be found in the narrow margin by which it succeeded.

What would have happened if the event which so narrowly succeeded had, in fact failed? It is very doubtful whether Napoleon could have escaped with his life.

In its more personal aspect the incident did little justice to the qualities which Napoleon so often exhibited, both earlier and later. On at least one other well known occasion in his career he lost his nerve when he needed it most. The presence of mind, the resource, the boldness and the ready falsehoods of London were really the qualities which carried the day, and it may be doubted whether the whole of his story can afford a more striking instance of energy and inspiration shown by one brother in the crisis of another's destiny.—British Review.

BULGARIAN KING ENTERS ADRIANOPLE

Adrianople, March 28.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria today entered the fortress of Adrianople, which recently fell before the assault of the combined Bulgarian and Serbian armies. He drove through long lines of Turkish prisoners and proceeded to the military club, where Shukri Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, handed him his sword. King Ferdinand returned him the weapon with a few complimentary words.

Shortly afterward, accompanied by his two sons, and Gene Savoff, Ivanoff and Petroff, His Majesty reviewed his victorious troops.

The attempt made by the Turks to destroy the railroad bridge over the Maritza river was partially successful, but repairs are being carried out and trains will be running within a week.

QUESTION CLEARED UP

Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

Again, and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine. But Portsmouth's pertinent question has always been "Has anyone here in Portsmouth been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true; but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizens, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily follow.

James W. McMullen, grocer, 69 Bennett street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy as they have been used in my family for pain and lameness across the joints, and difficulty with kidney secretions and they have always lived up to representations. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."

STATE FLOWER FOR PENNSYLVANIA

The Pennsylvania legislature, which has plenty of other subjects of more or less importance to consider, nevertheless has found time to quarrel over the question of designating a state flower. Members of the sub-committee of the house committee on education are at loggerheads as to whether the daisy of the violet shall be chosen as Pennsylvania's official floral emblem. Those who favor the violet insist that the daisy is less of an ornament than a nuisance, whereas the flower they approve has many friends and no enemies.

It may not be meant for outsiders to intrude upon a discussion so peculiarly local but there is a temptation to do so. Flower or weed. The daisy would at least be distinctive. Its claims have been either overlooked or ignored by all of the thirty six states which have designated official flowers either by legislative resolution or by a vote of the school children. Maryland to be sure has chosen the black eyed Susan, sometimes known as a yellow daisy, but that is a different thing from selecting the white and gold flower that so profusely decorates the fields in summer. As to the daisy being a nuisance, the same thing can be said of a golden-rod, but that well known fact, did not deter six states from adopting the goldenrod as their official flower.

On the other hand the claims of the violet could be pressed with more propriety if no other state had previously selected it. As it happens however, that modest and shrinking flower has already been the appropriate choice of the modest and shrinking people of Illinois, and it has likewise been adopted in Wisconsin and Rhode Island.

It would be manifestly a great misfortune if the difference of opinion now prevailing at Harrisburg should result in no floral choice. The state that has to worry along without an officially designated flower is necessarily under a great handicap nowadays.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Daniell of Greenland leave today on a trip to New York and Washington.

A HIGHWAY FROM KEENE TO PORTSMOUTH

William E. Marvin, President of the Board of Trade and Merchants' Exchange, went to Manchester Friday morning to attend a meeting of the committee organized from a mass meeting held some weeks ago at the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, to urge the building of a state highway from the Connecticut river to the sea, through the cities of Keene, Nashua, Manchester and Portsmouth.

The movement crystallized in House Bill No. 50 which the Committee on Public Improvements unanimously reported favorably, and which is now in the hands of the Committee on Appropriations which is expected also to make a favorable report. At a hearing before the committee a few days ago, great interest and enthusiasm in favor of it was manifested, and not a voice was heard in opposition.

It is the big highway measure of this session of the Legislature and is being watched with jealous care by the committee in charge to see that its efficiency be not impaired by ill-advised amendments or substitutes. The bill was carefully drawn by a selected committee chief among whom were Mr. Perkins of Manchester, the Republican candidate for Speaker of this House and Mr. Emerson of Milford a member of the last House and one of the chief promoters of the original trunk line policy.

The measure is well thought of and if it passes will constitute but another step in the development of that policy to which the state is now dutifully committed, of not only furnishing access to our resort attractions but of providing easy and convenient intercourse between our own centers and a means of closer acquaintance among ourselves.

Portsmouth will directly benefit by being brought more closely in touch with the cities named but also with interior Massachusetts cities and the Berkshires.
